

PRIORITIES

I told the Lord I was willing to serve Him as a missionary in the farthest country, but all He told me to do was to apologise to the girl at work whose incompetent work makes me lost my temper.

I said I would empty myself to be a channel for the Holy Spirit for any mighty work he wishes to do in the church, but all He said was that I should shout at the children less.

I felt so full of zeal that I said I would even be willing to die as a martyr for the Lord Jesus, but all Jesus said was that I should give way to the neighbour in a boundary dispute.

I didn't take him seriously, of course. It's no wonder the church isn't getting anywhere nowadays if God only wants us to do little things.

Jon Garvey